COLLAPSE OF A BIG BUILDING The Ohio Campaign Opened by

CAME DOWN WITH A CRASH.

Many Persons Thought to Be Buried Und a New York Building.

New York, August 22.-At 12:30 o'clock this afternoon an explosion occurred in the fivestory building, 66 Park place, occupied by John C. Eberle, manufacturer of maps. The explosion was immediately followed by a fire, and in a few minutes the building collapsed. The fire boys, girls, men and women were in the building at the time. Those who saw the catastrophe say that the earth trembled when the explosion occurred and that the fire was in the street in a couple; of seconds. The dust from the wreck rose in such clouds that for three minutes nothing could be seen of what was left standing but from the pall which hovered over the wrecked building came clouds of smoke agonv. Out of the clouds of fire and smoke half a dozen persons emerged, while from the sixstory building on the northeast corner of Greenwich and Park place poured at least 100 working people of both sexes and of all ages uttering cries of alarm. When the firemen arrived the Taylor building, Nos. 66 to 76 Park place, was ablaze and the Greenwich extension of the building was on fire. A general alarm was sounded and the firemen looked around to see if life could be saved. LEFT TO HIS FATE. Close to the entrance of 76 Park Place and pinned under a lot of masonry was a man whose head and shoulders were visible. While the firemen were endeavoring to unloose him a crash was heard above and down came the wreck of part of the Taylor building cornice. The firemen jumped for their lives and none were hurt.

When they dashed back again the man had been entirely buried and the bricks from the Greenwich street building began to fall so thickly that the attempt to rescue him had to be abandoned. There was but one witness to the beginning of the accident. This man is named A. A. of the accident. This man is named A. A. Johnson. He is a junitor in the building at 81 Park place, directly across the street-from where the accident occurred. He said that he was standing on the steps to 81 at noon, when he heard the sound of an explosion. It came from across the street. It was not loud. Almost immediately the front walls of the two buildings collapsed and the entire building caved in with a deafening crash. It came so suddenly that it was impossible for a living soul to escape from the building.

Of course nothing accurate is yet known, as the ruins are a mass of flames, and every engine available in the city is at work trying to subdue the flames in order that the work of recovering the bodies of the dead may be begun. The janitor of 81 said that the accident occurred so quickly and without warning that he did not see a person escape and feels certain that everybody in the buildings were killed.

OTHER VICTIMS REPORTS.

There were about twenty-five persons in the restaurant. Mike Carroll, who was employed at 66 Park place, says that there is very little chance of many of them escaping. There were seven men employed in the kitchen and Carroll says they must have been killed. He also saw four girls working in the basement mixing bronze and he does not think they could have got out. Carroll saw seven persons passing the building at the time of the explosion and all were knocked down by the shock. Before they recovered the walls fell on them and he thinks they were killed.

Many poor people are rendered homeless and the feed for miles on the stock ranges is burned off. Eldorado county, if anything, has suffered worse than her neighbor Nevada.

Several days ago a fire started near Clarks-ville. It traveled several miles each day, spreading far and wide, and in many sections denuded the country of timber. It followed the American river up the vicinity of Colona and reached the Grease Wood Hills, on the Cosumnes, south of Mud Springs. Men, women and children were out day and night protecting their homes.

Another fire started near Diamond Springs and spread over the hills on both sides of Web-circumstances have contributed to this change of tone. To begin with, the unfavorable aspects of the situation had been considerably exaggerated in the estimate of operators, while the favorable ones had been held in abeyance or their influence exhausted; and the market was thus pre-exposed to sympathize with new and hopeful influences.

"At this juncture came the intelligence of even a larger crop of wheat than the previous large. a larger crop of wheat than the previous large estimates had indicated and the prospects of the corn crop also have exhibited a steady im-

The iron trade has showed . provement. The iron trade has showed a marked recovery, the combined June and July product having equaled the extraordinary figures of last year, while the stocks on hand have been reduced, which is a favorable indication of recovery in our influstries at large. The boom in wheat and rye consequent upon the Russian ukase prohibiting the export of the latter grain, while inferentially favorable to the railroads, has awakened the long-dormant spirit of speculation in the grain trade, the contagion of which has readily spread to the stock exof which has readily spread to the stock ex-change. The tendency of information from Great Britain and the continent has been to dispel the illusions about the supposed des-perate condition of trans-Atlantic finances.

"The lateness of the autumnal outflow of money from this center to the west has also had an assuring effect, the more so as it puts back that movement so much nearer to the time when we may expect a compensation for time when we may expect a compensation for the drain in imports of specie.

"Putting together these several factors it can-not be denied that they amount to a substan-tial improvement in the situation, and coming, as they have, in a large measure unexpectedly, it is not surprising that they have changed the temper of the market and stimulated specula-tion, even to the extent of bringing out an out-side demand both speculative and for invest-ment. But, on the other side, it should not be ment. But, on the other side, it should not be ignored that undoubtedly the occasion has been seized by parties long and heavily loaded with unsalable stocks for fostering speculation and creating an opportunity to unload.

"For this and other reasons I am persuaded that it would be unwise to assume that the

that it would be unwise to assume that the present "boom" is likely to develop into a con-tinuous considerable further advance in prices. It would be only common prudence to let the market stand on further trial before trusting it confidently, and especially as London is giving it no support, but selling out on our boom."

There was a great lack of foreign news but a weak closing was reported in Liverpool and London. This caused a weak opening in the wheat market here, December starting a full cent under yesterday's closing. From there it declined \(\frac{1}{2} \), but on receipt of buying orders from New York rose to 105\(\frac{1}{2} \), above the opening price. This, however, was soon lost, when New York sent orders to sell and prices declined to 105\(\frac{1}{2} \).

The receipt of frost news from the northwest had the temporary effect of firming the market up \(\frac{1}{2} \), at 11 o clock. It was not believed, however, that the frost had done much damage to the crop and the market weakened again.

Berlin, August 22.—The grain market here opened this morning with rye firmer than at the close yesterday. Prices for August and for September and October delivery showed an advance of 2 marks per 1,000 kilos.

The market closed weak. Rye for August and September and October delivery closed at a decline of two marks from the highest prices of the day.

THE MONONGAHELA VALLEY.

Its Fertility and Mineral Re thing of Its History and Development pecial Correspondence of The Evening Star.

PITTSBURG, August 20, 1891. One of the most interesting and picturesque sections of the country is the beautiful valley of the Monongahela, which drains the trans-Allegheny region between the Kanawha and Allegheny. Rich in mineral resources and historic lore, no section of our country presents wider range for study and investment.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad penetrates his fair valley over two routes—the main line from Baltimore to Wheeling and the Philadelphia division from Cumberland to Pittsburg. Coming by the latter route I reach the Monongahela at McKeesport—an active and thriving city of perhaps 20,000 inhabitants. The rush of industry and ceaseless whirl of machinery are heard on every side. The latter city is at the embouchure of the Youghiogheny and Mo-nongahela and shows the spirit of thrift in all directions.

The great source of wealth of this valley is coal, which is mined and shipped to market on the lower Ohio and Mississippi. The river is dammed as far as Morgantown, W. Va., and a regular line of steamboats ply between Pittsburg and Morgantown. One of these boats, the "James G. Blaine," is quite a favorite. This valley, it may be stated, is the early home of the distinguished statesman, and the people are proud of this fact. A new town has been located a short distance above Elizabeth, which cated a short distance above Elizabeth, which bears the name of "Blaine." THE BIRTHPLACE OF BLAINE.

The visitor to West Brownsville, fifty miles above McKeesport, finds himself at the old nome of James G. Blaine, and by visiting the plain rural cemetery, under the shadow of the little Catholic church, may be read upon a plain, unpretentious stone these names:

EPHRAIM L. BLAINE MARIA GILLESPIE BLAINE.

These were the father and mother of the great statesman. Here at West Brownsville he was born January 31, 1880. His father was elected prothonotary of Washington county, and the office required a change of residence to the county seat. James G. Blaine has occasionally visited the home of his youth. He has valuable landed interests in this valley, particularly coal lands. Several years ago he purchased valuable tracts near Elizabeth.

Another great secretary once lived in this attractive valley and engaged in active indusattractive valley and engaged in active indus-try. Albert Gallatin resided at Geneva, which he named for his Swiss home. He established he named for his Swiss home. He established glass manufactories and engaged largely in the local industry of the Monongahela valley.

Natural gas has been developed at several points along the valley—McKeesport, Elizabeth, Belle Vernon, &c. Great industry is manifested wherever oil and gas has been discovered and many localities revolutionized. At this writing much excitement exists at McDonald, a few miles south of this city, by the strike of a well represented to run 3,000 barrels per day. In that immediate locality over 200 wells have been bored within the last six months and $2,000,000 expended. This appears marvelous, but the expended. This appears marvelous, but the statement is made on reliable authority. Throughout the entire extent of the Monon-gahela valley oil and gas have been discovered

THE WHISKY WAR. The Monongahela valley acquired a certaim notoriety as the scene of the famous whisky insurrection of 1794. About every settler of insurrection of 1794. About every settler of prominence or influence could boast a still, or had three, in Hopewell township. The conversion of rye products into whisky was about the only means the rude frontiersman had of realizing ready cash, whereby to purchase salt and other commodities for home. The cost of transporting wheat and rye to market was about as much as the articles would bring, but a keg of whisky was found to pay well. This was the condition of things in the Monongahela valley toward the close of the last century.

The excise law of 1791, framed by Alexander Hamilton, then Secretary of the Treasury, laid four phnee per gallon on all distilled liquors. Albert Gallatin, residing in Fayette county, opposed the law, as did the Representatives in Congress, Findley and Smith. Public meetings were promptly called, and the people assembled en masse to oppose the "iniquitous law." The first was held at Red Stone, Old Fort, July 27, 1791, when it was resolved to have county committees meet at their respective. and refuse all intercourse with them.

The insurrection soon became general and many acts of violence were committed.

Congress finally ordered an army to be sent to subdue the insurrection and disperse the insurgents. Gov. Harry Lee was place in command, with Gen. Daniel Morgan commanding a division. Washington himself came as far as Bedford. The efficiency and discretion of the army had the desired effect.

the traveler follows Braddock's field, the scene

some action has not been taken to commemorate by appropriate monument the scene of this disastrous defeat.

The most dreaded species, namely, the Rocky mountain locust, was found in only limited localities in North Dakota and Minnesota, and the species producing the injury in Colorado and Kansas and other sec-tions are species which have in the past proved of national importance. LOOKING FOR THE HIGHWAYMEN. John Johnson Attacked Last Night Near His Own Hous

John Johnson and the assault was committed in Essex court near the victim's home. Some days ago Johnson had more money than he had been in the habit of carrying about with him and he was so well pleased with it that he exhibited it to others who were not so wealthy.

The invitation to rob was accepted, so it appears from Johnson's complaint, and about 11:30 o'clock last night he was knocked down by the two colored men, whom he says he We had hardly got in the alley from the treet when the men grabbed him, and he started to cry for assistance, but their threats and as-sault frightened him. They knocked him down and rified his pockets of some letters and papers, but did not get any money, as he had none with him.

Johnson's assailants then left and went out toward I street. He found an officer, who sent him to the Emergency Hospital in the first pre-cinct patrol wagon. Dr. Atchison dressed his wounds, the worst one being a cut on his head. The police have descriptions of John REFLECTIONS ON AN APPRAISER.—The naval officer at New York in a letter to the Secretary of the Treasury presents computations which seem to indicate, so he says, "that the practice of invoicing cotton shirts and drawers at average prices has been resorted to by importers for the purpose of defrauding the revenue, and that the appraiser has failed to return goods so invoiced, in accordance with Revised Statutes 2910, at the value of the highest valued goods in such invoice, in order that duty may be assessed at the rate to which such highest valued goods are subject." Assistant Secretary Nettleton has referred the papers to the collector at New York, with instructions to inform himself of the facts pertaining to such importations, and to call on the appraiser to show cause why he does not in such cases observe the conditions of R.
